Says Will Gain Time

Nixon Defends Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is reported to have told visitors Thursday that destruction of North Vietnamese bases in Cambodia would gain eight to 12 months of time before enemy troops would be able to rebuild the bases for use against South Vietnam.

Nixon spent about an hour meeting with members of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom in Vietnam, including some who recently made a fact-finding tour of Indochina.

The seven-man fact-finding team completed its three weeks trip April 20 and submitted its report to Nixon on April 29.

That was the day before Nixon announced he was sending U.S. combat troops into Cambodia to destroy the sanctuaries but was after he had made the decision to do so.

The committee report which was released at the White House after the Thursday meeting with the President had recommended that Nixon "take firm, immediate steps to secure the safety of American troops in Vietnam which, with mounting concern, we see as seriously imperiled by current developments in Cambodia."

It also recommended that in any negotiations for a peace settlement "proposals for the withdrawal of foreign troops apply to Cambodia and Laos as well as to South Vietnam."

According to persons present in the meeting with Nixon, he laid heavy stress on the limited nature of his decision to send in American forces, saying that it provided only for operations against the sanctuary area and was of limited duration.

Its importance, he said, lay in the fact that the United States and South Vietnam would gain eight to 10 or 12 months of time before the bases could be ready for enemy use again.

Nixon called that a "precious year" in which the South Vietnamese military force could be further developed "from boy to man" so that when the United States removes its forces from South Vietnam that country will have an army, navy and air force able to defend it.

Nixon was also reported to have said that given the conditions in Cambodia the consequences of his failure to move against the Communist sanctuaries would have been very severe and he felt after considering the problem that he had no real choice except to take the action he did.

The committee recommended that the United States should welcome efforts by Asian nations "to act on the new dimensions of the Indochina war created by the invasion of Cambodia and Laos by the regular troops of a foreign power."

It also proposed that Nixon "dispatch a high level official fact-finding mission to the capitals of selected Asian states."

Former ambassador Edmund A. Guillon, a retired former envoy to the Congo and now dean of the Fletcher school of law and diplomacy at Tufts University served as spokesman for the group which met with Nixon. He was also a member of the team which went to Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn. (center), at a meeting of about 25 members of the New Democratic Coalition Tuesday, proposed that a special Democratic National convention be called to deal with the war in Indochina. He suggested moves to create a new party for the Presidential elections of 1972 if the Democratic Party failed "to purge itself" of what it did at the 1968 convention in Chicago. Voice Of Protest Swells

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voice of protest swelled in Washington Thursday as war dissenters tried new methods to press their peace demands and prepare for a massive rally Saturday.

Students, educators, clergymen and other sympathizers combed the national capital talking to congressmen, cabinet members and even President Nixon.

For another roundup story on the protest movement on Illinois campuses, see page 11.

Plans went forward for a rally near the White House Saturday to protest U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia and the slaying of four students by National Guardsmen on the campus of Kent State University in Ohio.

Student leaders were calling for a nonviolent demonstration and adding: "We really mean it."

Almost the entire population of Haverford College in Pennsylvania—about 675 students, faculty and staff—came to town for a day of seminars and talks with congressmen about their concern over the war and campus unrest.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., held an open meeting in a Senate hearing room for any New York constituents who wanted to talk to him about Cambodia and campus problems.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., reserved the auditorium of the New Senate Office Building to give students an opportunity to carry on a dialogue with senators. About 1,000 attended.

A number of students attended a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing and broke into cheers when Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., suggested that colleges and universities release students three weeks before the November elections to work for antiwar candidates.

Students from eight graduate schools of international affairs announced plans for congress-sional canvassing. Other students were out on the streets passing out leaflets.

In contrast to the hippie garb that marked last fall's demonstrations, many young protesters were conventionally clad.

Nixon met with eight university presidents to explore the causes of "student frustrations and unrest." A presidential spokesman later said the group had "a very full and worthwhile discussion."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers met with a group from Grinnell College. He is scheduled to meet Monday with another from his alma mater, Colgate University.

Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch met with students and faculty from Stanford University and called the campus unrest "a national crisis."

America's involvement in Cambodia and the Kent State killings "have created a whole new ball game and the President knows it," Finch said. At least 100 colleges have been closed down across the nation in the wake of protests which erupted after Nixon announced a week ago that South Vietnamese and U.S. troops were entering Cambodia in quest of Communist sanctuaries. Student leaders claim their protest strike has touched some 400 campuses.

Straight-talking university heads said they won President Nixon's assurance Thursday his administration would cease hostile criticism of campus happenings and personalities.

A delegation representing the Association of American Universities reported this commitment after the President sought and received their gloves-off assessment of the "distress, frustration and anger among student and faculty across the nation."

Colleges Across U.S. Stage War Protests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Approximately 136 colleges across the nation were officially closed Thursday because of antiwar activities. At many others, classes were curtailed or canceled because of student strikes, marches, sit-ins and, in some cases, violence.

President Nixon held a conference with eight university presidents to explore the causes of "student frustrations and unrest."

At the same time, Yale University President Kingman Brewster Jr. called for a nationwide effort by college students and teachers "to put pressure on the Nixon administration to end the war and to cease its attacks on the students and the universities."

Fires were reported at 11 campuses, the main targets being ROTC buildings. Students on some campuses staged sit-ins in college buildings and blocked streets at others. National Guardsmen were on standby duty near several campuses.

The campus protests against Nixon's Indochina policies and the deaths of four students at Kent State University killed by Ohio National Guardsmen, were mostly peaceful, however.

A student strike information center set up at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., said it counted 319 schools with students' strikes going. A similar organization at Antioch College in Columbia, Md., said 48 campuses had strikes.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon's meeting with the college heads was held at the request of Nixon and provided "a very full and worthwhile discussion." The eight presidents represented the Association of American Universities.

Brewster said he would lead a delegation of Yale trustees, teachers and students to Washington, D.C., "to talk with the Yale graduates who are members of Congress about how to stop the war."

Many campuses in the country had no demonstrations and some individuals and organizations spoke out against the antiwar activity.

President S. I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College said some students were being "led by anarchists who use current emotions as a cheap excuse to destroy buildings, institutions and lives."

A Young Republican organization in Massachusetts and one in Vermont issued statements backing Nixon's policies and deploring campus protest activities.

About 40 students at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., calling themselves "Strike Back" called for resumption of classes which had been called off for the week.

"Closing down the colleges and placing it in favor of a particular viewpoint damages the integrity," said Charles Smith, a freshman member of the group.

Protests took a variety of forms.

At Salem, Mass., State College it was a scholarship fund set up in memory of the four dead students.

At the University of Tulsa it was a day-long teach-in that started with the lowering of the American flag to half-staff.

At Iowa State University it was an all night campout on the parking lot outside the Ames Selective Service headquarters.

Six hundred students at Haverford, Pa., College went to Washington, D.C., for a one-day expression of concern over Cambodia. At the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, students sat peacefully in classroom doorways.

Unemployment Rise Highest In 10 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department will report Friday the sharpest rise in the nation's unemployment in 10 years, up from 4.4 to 4.8 per cent of the civilian labor force in April, informed sources said Thursday.

The steep rise of some 300,000 more unemployed workers last month pushed the nation's jobless total to around 4 million, highest level in five years, the sources said.

The report came amid warnings from organized labor that President Nixon's economic policies designed to curb inflation threaten the nation with an economic recession without slowing the price rise.

The reported April jump of four-tenths of one per cent in the unemployment rate was the largest since the 1960 economic recession.

The stringent White House economic policies of tight money, high interest and federal spending cuts have been designed to curb the nation's worst inflation in 20 years but have only barely slowed the annual rise of more than 6 per cent.

While AFL-CIO officials declined comment on the reported April rise until the government confirms it, the labor federation's newspaper this week said "The AFL-CIO had specifically warned several months ago that what is presently coming to pass was built into the administration's blunderbuss economic policies and its highly publicized campaign against inflation."

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has said Nixon is concerned about unemployment, and was combatting it with stepped-up job training programs.

The actual number of unemployed dropped 181,000 to 3,552,000 in April, but because it normally declines much more for that month the Bureau of Labor Statistics figured a seasonally adjusted rise of 291,000 to a total of 3,948,000 jobless. The sources who saw the advance report.

Demos Move To Cut Funds Used In War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats moved Thursday to force an early vote on a proposal aimed at cutting off funds for the current U.S. drive into Cambodia.

The Democratic Policy Committee adopted a resolution calling on committee chairmen to give priority to measures relating to Vietnam and Cambodia, and Republican Leader Hugh Scott agreed to back the move.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told reporters the action could bring before the Senate late next week a military sales bill, along with a proposed amendment to bar funds for the Cambodia operation.

The amendment sponsored by Mansfield and Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., Frank Church, D-Idaho, and George D. Aiken, R-Vt., is expected to come before the Foreign Relations Committee on Monday.

The House for a second successive day defeated a similar funds cutoff pressed by critics of President Nixon's decision to push against Communist forces in Cambodia. A bipartisan coalition crushed the proposal 163 to 94 on a nonrecord vote.

The amendment on which the Senate may be asked to vote shortly would bar all funds for ground forces in Cambodia, prohibit instruction of Cambodian military forces or hiring mercenaries, and would forbid aerial combat above the Southeast Asian country by the U.S. Air Force "except for the interdiction of enemy supplies of personnel using Cambodian territory for attack against or access into South Vietnam."

Asked whether he thinks chances are good for the proposal, Mansfield said "I would hope so." He said he believes it to have a better chance than a proposal by Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., and 15 other senators that would cut off all U.S. funds for operations in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam except those used for withdrawal of American forces.

Mansfield said he was not certain if the proposal, even if accepted by the House, could be passed in Congress before the June 30 target set by Nixon for ending the U.S. operation in Cambodia.

Mansfield said he had spoken to Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Foreign Relations Committee, who said he hoped to report the military sales measure to the Senate by the end of next week. Mansfield said it would be taken up immediately.

Earlier, Mansfield had said he is confident there will be a record vote soon on one of the proposals aimed at cutting off funds for U.S. operations in Southeast Asia.

He said college students flocking into the capital for an antiwar protest Saturday are placing "a lot of reliance on the Senate." Mansfield told newsmen: "We shall do our best to live up to their expectations."

Sen. McGovern told the Senate he expects a vote within 30 or 40 days on his proposal—now backed by 15 other senators—to limit further funds for Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to those needed for safe withdrawal of U.S. forces.

He said he expected only "a handful of cosponsors" when he and Sen. Mark O'Hair, R-Ore., announced the proposal before President Nixon disclosed last Thursday that U.S. forces had entered Cambodia.

But he said that, plus the reaction to the fatal shooting of four students at Kent State University, "will, with hard work in the Senate, produce enough cosponsors and votes to carry this amendment."

McGovern's amendment would come up when the Senate considers the $20.2 billion military procurement authorization bill, probably in early June.

South Viets Plan Foray Up Mekong

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam will send a flotilla up the Mekong River to the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, the Foreign Ministry announced Thursday.

Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam told reporters the operation is a relief effort and will carry medicine and supplies to Vietnamese residents of Cambodia. He said that the boats will return any Vietnamese who want to leave and the movement will have "the cooperation of Cambodian troops."

The U.S. Command refused to confirm or deny reports from official sources that American boats would join the flotilla.

"If there is American participation, we will announce it at the appropriate time," a command spokesman said.

The flotilla will cover 60 miles of river to reach Phnom Penh.

Other sources described the relief effort as a military river-opening operation. They pointed out that the stretch of the Mekong River from the border to Phnom Penh has been closed to commercial traffic since two Japanese ships were fired on several weeks ago.

North Vietnamese troops hold the ferry crossing Neak Luong, 37 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

It was captured Sunday and Cambodian troops have been trying to retake it.

The U.S. Command in Saigon withheld comment Friday on a White House announcement that American troops had captured "A major sophisticated base complex" in Cambodia that might be supreme Communist headquarters.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Thursday in Washington he could not say definitely the complex was the chief headquarters, designated as the goal of the American attack into Cambodia. He said, however, that the bastion in Cambodia's Fishhook area was the largest yet uncovered in that country by allied troops.

Allied forces operating inside Cambodia, meanwhile, dug up new caches of enemy supplies Thursday as they probed deeper into North Vietnamese and Viet Cong sanctuaries.

Associated Press correspondent David Rosenberg reported from Base Area 702, in north-east Cambodia about 50 miles west of Pleiku, that troops of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division stumbled across a bunker complex they believe may have served as a division headquarters for North Vietnamese troops.

The troops captured a wounded North Vietnamese captain. He said that 70 of his comrades had been wounded in air strikes against the base camp and had been evacuated to a hospital.

This is the northernmost of the six fronts opened against enemy supply bases in Cambodia.

Rosenberg reported that allied troops discovered three farms they said had been run by North Vietnamese troops. Three-hundred pigs and chickens found by government forces on two of the farms were distributed to troops in the field.

American infantrymen found one of the farms and said it had 34 abandoned buildings on it, seven bunkers, rice, salt and nearly 100 pigs and chickens.

A total of 20 enemy troops were reported killed in scattered actions around the base area. Several Americans and South Vietnamese were wounded.

About 200 miles to the south, in the Fishhook region where U.S. troops launched their first massive assault into Cambodia last Friday, 1st Air Cavalry Division troops found more than 50 tons of rice. They destroyed more than a dozen enemy vehicles, including a truck loaded with ammunition.

A 10,000-man South Vietnamese task force with American advisers pulled out of the Parrot's Beak area west of Saigon, spokesmen said Thursday. Other strong South Vietnamese forces, however, were still operating north and south of Svay Rieng, the provincial capital 30 miles west of the border. They included a fresh armored task force.

Allied headquarters claimed that more than 3,000 enemy have been killed in the weeklong Cambodian offensive, and hundreds of tons of war materiel and foodstuffs have been captured.

Thirty American and 176 South Vietnamese troops have been reported killed and 79 Americans and 840 South Vietnamese wounded.

The U.S. Command said 123 Americans were killed and 997 were wounded in battle last week, considerably higher than for the previous week. This brought U.S. casualties in the war to 41,783 dead and 275,724 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 450 troops killed and 1,228 wounded, also a rise from the previous week. The allied commands said 3,415 enemy troops were killed the past week, a larger total than in the previous week.

Deeper in Cambodia, about 3,000 Cambodian troops moved to within about six miles of the ferry crossing at Neak Luong, but were halted by enemy fire, a dispatch from the area reported. One Cambodian soldier was killed.

Two tanks moved on up Highway 1 but they took numerous hits from rifle fire and pulled back, apparently fearful of rocket attacks.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, a Cambodian military spokesman said North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces captured two cities in the northeast, Senmorom, near the border and the largest city in Monduliri Province, and Kratie, on the Mekong River 77 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

In Laos, military sources in Vientiane said Laotian troops recaptured and then lost Phou Sa Phong, a hilltop position five miles north of Attapeu. Attapeu, a provincial capital, was captured by the North Vietnamese a week ago.

Murdering Justice

Those students and faculty members at Yale who are trying to stop a murder trial by calling a strike against the university have plunged campus activism into new depths of irrationality.

Some are so enamored with the Black Panthers' revolutionary rhetoric that they reject the legitimacy of any court that might try Panther Chairman Bobby Seale. Others are convinced that the murder charges against Mr. Seale are merely part of a national campaign of harassment. And some, using the Panther issue to further their own goals, are merely seizing the opportunity to bring yet another great university to a halt.

Mr. Seale has every citizen's right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. He is entitled to a fair trial. But in the face of a charge of murder, allegedly committed against a member who broke party discipline, he has no right to expect immunity from trial, nor have his supporters the slightest shred of justification in trying to hold the university hostage in their effort to prevent that trial. In an emotional sermon that stood moral principles on their head, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., chaplain of Yale, denounced the trial as "legally right but morally wrong," thus doing his best to guarantee moral confusion among his student followers.

Mr. Coffin said that even if Mr. Seale were to be found guilty as charged, the entire nation stands accused of bringing him to the state of mind in which the alleged crime might have been committed. This is a legally and morally wrong and dangerous concept, even when supposedly elevated to the level of theological doctrine. Indeed whether Mr. Seale is innocent or guilty, cancellation of the trial, in surrender to the academic community's pressure, could only be read as giving immunity from prosecution to any group or individual capable of mustering sufficiently powerful support on the campus or in the streets.

Individual students and faculty members are fully entitled to express their views and solicit funds in support of any cause. The plan of a seven-man panel for the Yale Law School to investigate the circumstances of the trial and to observe the court's procedure is entirely proper and could, if responsibly and competently pursued, constitute a public service.

But for the university itself to be forced to become a political partisan in this or any other controversy would be the beginning of the end of its independence and academic authority. Those at Yale who are engaged in trying to shut down the university in order to coerce it to use its power to stop a trial which it has no power to stop are only jeopardizing the future of the university as they attempt to thwart the course of justice. This is the road toward legal, moral and intellectual chaos.

Communication

To the Editor:

Since last week's announcements informing the community about the financial crisis now facing the Sherwood Eddy Memorial YMCA, I have had countless questions asked of me. In order to provide straight answers and eliminate unnecessary rumors, I feel it is essential to publicly answer the most often asked questions.

1. Why is the YMCA in trouble?

The main reason for our financial problems is because of our mistake of last fall with having the membership campaign only for new members. The thinking was that renewals would come in automatically, which was not the case. During the winter, a follow-up campaign was conducted but did not produce what was necessary. This is leaving the YMCA with an expected $32,000 deficit by August 31, and the inability to even meet payroll last month.

2. What can be done?

The first step being undertaken by the board of directors, who are all volunteer laymen, is to become completely educated on the YMCA financial situations to assure that such a problem will not repeat itself. At the same time, five separate steps of action are being undertaken to eliminate the current crisis.

a. Lifetime Memberships — $1,000. A life membership with Health club and full membership benefits which is good for the lifetime of the head of the house.

b. Sustaining Contributions — Any amount (tax deductible) with the understanding that the funds will be used for current operation expenses and not for the Building Fund.

c. Advanced Membership Renewals — Encouraging members to renew their memberships early for next year. A year's membership would be added to the actual expiration date, but it would provide immediate cash now.

d. Soliciting New Family Memberships — Although the "Y" serves over 25 per cent of the entire Jacksonville school district population from grades three through 12, it only has 300 Family Memberships out of a potential of over 7,000.

e. Youth Scholarships — $25 each. Two hundred four out of 1,174 youths are on scholarships. More sponsors are needed to cover those now in the membership as well as those who will be making applications this coming summer. This is also tax deductible.

3. How soon does it need to be done? Immediate response is needed. We have a problem right now which cannot be postponed.

4. What is the "Y" doing to help solve the problem?

Cuts are being made wherever possible in all staff areas, and a complete study is being made on programs for cut-backs where necessary.

5. What happens if adequate help is not received?

One thousand one hundred seventy-four youths, 2,269 total membership, junior high and high school swimming programs, Pathway School swimming, Elm City Rehabilitation Center recreation, sports leagues, Skill school courses, etc. All those and many more will not be served as the final action would be to lock the doors and close up.

The new YMCA has only been in Jacksonville a few short years, but its programs have made a tremendous impact upon the community. I think Jacksonville residents need ask themselves only one question as to the need of their support. This is simply, "Where will all the children go?" The answer is determined by them.

Cambodian Action May Change Talks Climate

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Because of Cambodia, hopes for meaningful talks between the two superpowers have taken a bad beating.
If Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's words Monday were a barometer of future weather, President Nixon's professed goal of an "era of negotiation" has been severely set back not only with regard to Indochina, but in such other enormously important areas as the Middle East and SALT, the strategic arms limitation talks now going on in Vienna.

On the SALT sessions, for example, President Nixon has said that the Americans are determined to try to "reach agreements that will not only protect our national security, but actually enhance it." What does Kosygin say now?

"Our delegation," the Soviet leader told correspondents, "went to Vienna to have serious negotiations. Of course all negotiations are based on a spirit of trust between parties. But when treaties are flouted, elementary standards of international law are violated, this does not increase trust, the trust without which it is difficult to conduct negotiation."

That seemed to mean that while the Russians would make no move to break off the talks, they have little expectation of significant progress in Vienna.

On Indochina and the Vietnam talks in Paris, President Nixon said a few days ago the United States would continue trying to end the war at that negotiating table "rather than through more fighting on the battlefield." But it looks, at best, like a long, muggy summer for the Paris talks which began two years ago. In fact, the new bombing of North Vietnam offers an excuse to Hanoi to boycott or end the talks if it chooses. On this matter, Kosygin said there were "no grounds to believe the United States came to the peace talks in the spirit of good will."

What about the chances for a new Geneva conference on Indochina? The Soviet Union is co-chairman with Britain of that conference. The United States and Britain have been prodding Moscow to call a new meeting.

But, said Kosygin, the United States is already "flouting the Geneva agreements of 1954 and 1962" on Indochina. Thus, "how should repeated statements of the U.S. President on passing from an era of confrontation to an era of negotiation be understood?"

On matters such as the Middle East and tensions in general, President Nixon has expressed confidence that dangers could be reduced by patient efforts to reconcile conflicting interests. In the Middle East, he has said, "we have a common interest in avoiding direct confrontation," and thus the administration has urged limitation of the shipments of arms to belligerents.

That seems out the window for the moment. Kosygin suggests it's none of the Americans' business what his pilots and specialists are doing in Egypt. The Russians have shipped new equipment to the Arabs, and the Americans are considering new planes for Israel.

The Kosygin statements indicated that Soviet political leaders were enormously angry with President Nixon. Kosygin was telling him that American-Soviet relations were dangerously low and that it was Nixon's fault.

The developments, of course, also cause difficulties for Moscow. Red China has jumped into the new Indochina situation by arranging a summit conference of the leftist leaders of Indochina and by seeking to display itself as the real friend and protector of Asian communism. This probably has moved the Russians to do something more than wringing hands and deploring. Thus Kosygin's statements are accompanied by a promise of yet more sophisticated military hardware for North Vietnam.

Law For Today

Q. My husband and I were divorced last summer. I have custody of our only child—an emotionally handicapped youngster. Our entire income comes from alimony and child support. Must I file an income tax return?

A. Yes. However, payments designated in a divorce decree as child support for minor children are not taxable to the wife since they are derived from the husband's taxable income. If the divorce decree does not specify the amount as child support, then the entire payment is considered as alimony and must be reported as income by the wife. In that case, the amount is deductible by the husband since it becomes taxable income to the wife on her income tax return.

More Safety For Next Apollo

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The type of oxygen tank carried by Apollo 13 is made of beryllium. Such tanks carry oxygen under heavy pressure. But such tanks have their limits. If the pressure gets too great, they explode like hand grenades.

An electrical short circuit could cause a build-up of pressure. So could a breakdown in the cooling system which keeps the oxygen at proper temperature. (A rise in the temperature causes gas to expand, creating pressure. When there is no room to expand, the pressures that can be built up are tremendous.)

It is known from the data that there was a build-up of pressure in an oxygen tank aboard Apollo 13 shortly before the explosion.

This is some of the part-fact, part-conjecture discussion now going on among scientists involved with man in space.

No one is certain whether what is related above actually occurred.

But if this is, in fact, the type of explosion which did take place, it probably happened quickly. The time from the beginning build-up of pressure to the explosion was perhaps a matter of minutes—say ten at the most.

The Apollo 13 astronauts would have had no way to stop it.

Such an explosion possibly could be prevented by building the walls of an oxygen tank thicker. Or perhaps the pressure build-up and the explosion could have been averted by putting redundancy in the cooling system, that is by building an alternate cooling system that could be flicked into operation if the pressure in an oxygen tank started to rise unduly. But it would have to be done quickly.

Or a switch could be installed which would enable the astronauts to release some of the oxygen from a tank at the first sign of increasing pressure.

It must be emphasized that it is not certain the explosion was as described above. As noted in a previous column, it may be that the scientists will never know for certain. That is even if they know a tank exploded, they may never be certain what caused that explosion.

What is certain is that the next Apollo will have even more safety features. There will be more redundancy, which means there will be more substitute or alternate systems to use in an emergency if one or more major systems fail.

But this will create new problems. The weight in an Apollo is figured so closely that every pound added is a major worry. Add too many pounds and you create new hazards even more dangerous (and perhaps more likely to occur) than an oxygen tank explosion.

What happens when you add five or ten pounds to strengthen an oxygen container, some more pounds to provide for an alternate cooling system and several more pounds here and there to provide against other possible dangers?

These are not easy questions to solve. They will take time.

Ann Landers: Veterinarians Disagree On Animal Homosexuality

Dear Ann Landers: Is there such a thing as homosexuality among cats? We have a male Siamese who wants nothing to do with female cats. He has been given many opportunities to make friends with any number of attractive, healthy girl cats but he ignores them all and chums up to the males.

At first we thought it was funny. Now we are concerned that he is not normal. Please let us know if our suspicions are correct.—North Carolina Problem

Dear N.C.: I checked with five veterinarians and came away with three different answers.

One veterinarian said, "Yes, your cat may well be a homosexual—if he has a hormonal imbalance resulting from castration." Another said, "Cats can become neurotic if subjected to neurotic people. A melancholy cat might turn gay." Another said, "Homosexuality is a natural phenomenon which occurs in all species, especially cows."

Two veterinarians said, "There is no such thing as homosexuality among animals, if we mean by homosexuality, the aberration as it occurs in humans." I'm inclined to accept the word of the last two doctors.

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoy cooking and I prepare good meals. Please tell me why my husband NEVER can come to the table when I call him. He has either just started to read something or he is involved with a TV show, or he must make some phone calls. I nearly get apoplexy because of his maddening habit. He says he can't help it and I should get off his back. What should I do?—Las Vegas

Dear L.V.: Get off his back. This "habit" probably goes back to the days when his mother called him to the table and he used the stalling technique as a mechanism to keep from being "ordered around."

You aren't going to change him, so change your routine. Announce that dinner will be served at a certain time. Give him 30 minutes notice. Call him once. If he's involved in something else, go ahead and eat and let Sonny Boy have the dried out reheated hash—when he gets ready.

Dear Ann Landers: My conscience is bothering me. Jordy and I used to have a lot of fun. Then he began to confide in me and tell me his innermost feelings. Our dates have turned into psychiatric sessions. Now he openly verbalizes his hatred for his mother, his fear of his father, his competitiveness with his brother and his disgust with his sister.

I realize he needs someone to talk to, but he tells me such intimate things I get depressed every time we go out. I've laughingly said, "I'm no shrink," and have tried to change the subject. But it's useless. He goes on and on.

We are both 17, but I feel like 100 after three hours with him. What should I do?—Psyched Out

Dear Psyched: Some people don't mind listening—particularly if they feel it serves a useful purpose. Since you DC mind, and the boy's unloading has a depressing effect on you, ease him off your date list—gently.

YOUR BIRTHDAY and HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, MAY 8—Born today you may never know material wealth—but from the time you are very young you will be known for your wealth of personality. In general, a happy child, guided by imagination, intelligence, and affection, you no doubt developed with relative rapidity into a popular, knowledgeable, sensitive, sympathetic adult. Often called upon to settle arguments, solve problems, and, in general, aid others in their efforts to get along, you should be able to spread considerable cheer.

You are basically a creative person, one who prefers to do things his own way, no matter how difficult, rather than walk in the steps of others. This is not to say, however, that you refuse to learn from the successes or failures of others; indeed, it is because you learn so much from others that you feel certain that you are yourself capable of handling things in your own way and your own time.

Your relationships with others should prove the happiest aspect of your life. You are fond of people and most particularly fond of those who show even the slightest fondness for you. Such reciprocation makes for happy companions, with no one feeling left out or shunted aside. You are especially happy in your relationships with children. To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.
Saturday, May 9
TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Make your retreat from the family absolute or not at all. An all-or-nothing day where your relationships with people are concerned.
GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Take care that you don't jeopardize the benefits of the past week simply to satisfy an unimportant wish.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Include others in your plans for Saturday fun. You will double your enjoyment if you don't try to keep pleasures for yourself.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Take care not to challenge ideas with which you are not thoroughly familiar. Make sure to act within the limits of your knowledge.
VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—The wise Virgo will back off from a battle of wits today. You will do much better if you wait for a better time.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Take advantage of a day which offers a great deal in the way of both material and spiritual enjoyment. Lend a hand to others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Behave according to your own principles and all should go well. Don't go against what you know to be right for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Take the time to educate yourself along some line previously ignored. A day for flowers and philosophy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—You can begin no sooner than right now. Take the bull by the horns and set to work at once on at-home projects of some magnitude.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Seek out companions with the same interests as you have. You must make the effort or this will not be a congenial day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—Don't waste your time on matters already going well. Get the help of others in establishing new thoughts on the subject.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—Don't be tempted by the promise of gain into going against your own plans for this day. A Saturday for family.

Comments Of Pavement Plato

American People Numb, Bewildered, Confused

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato: The American people feel blue.

They have the taste of ashes in their mouths.

The whole nation is in the dumps.

There is a sickness in our souls.

Who can remember a time when everybody felt so bad about so many things and so few people had any idea of a remedy that would make us feel better?

We are cut up and divided more ways than an apple pie in a cheap boarding house. We are like a dazed pedestrian caught on a superhighway, wondering from which direction he may be hit next.

Here we are the richest and supposedly the most powerful land on earth, but we are as uneasy as the dwellers in a wooden castle whose pillars are riddled by termites.

Power? What power? Internationally, many nations are looking down their noses at us as military huns because of our adventures in Indochina. Like Br'er Rabbit's epochal struggle with the Tar Baby in the Uncle Remus fable, the harder we fight the more we get stuck. Our brush war in Vietnam has become a long bonfire we seem unable to put out. Domestically, our plight offers small cheer. One month we are scared to death of inflation, the next month we are scared to death that the steps we take to combat it will lead us into a major depression.

Money won't buy what it used to—and neither will credit. As a matter of fact, credit is getting almost as hard for the average man to find as money.

The rich are worried about the predatory poor, and the poor keep pressing the government for more welfare and a fairer shake. As for the middle class, it is convinced it is being squeezed out of existence.

A widening generation gap has left youth contemptuous of age and age fearful of youth. If things keep up this way much longer babies will probably soon be born with picket signs in their hands.

We are immersed in a bath of violence. There is so much crime it has become a national crime that we put up with it.

Our college sons and daughters, the hope of tomorrow, are the despair of today. They don't know what they stand for—only what they are against.

Our police threaten to strike, and our schoolteachers do. Parents try to dull their woes with martinis; the younger generation turns to a newer opiate—marijuana.

The problem of how to live is accompanied by the problem of where to live. Rents are going up—like everything else—and young couples complain they can't mortgage their future by paying the interest charges on a housing mortgage.

About all we can point to with pride are a few souvenir rocks brought back from a couple of round trips to the moon—and if you look up at the stars at night the man in the moon seems to be laughing at us for our labors.

Yes, the state of the Union at the moment is a state of shock. The American people are numb, bewildered, confused.

ROODHOUSE CHURCH MEN TO MEET

ROODHOUSE — Thursday night, May 28, the Christian Men's Fellowship meeting will be held at the local Christian church. More details will be announced later.

Sister Clara Inez and Mrs. Mary Dietel of South Bend, Ind., spent the weekend with the former's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Ruyle, and others. Recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hakes of Dana were Mr. and Mrs. Ruyle and daughter, Miss Joan Ruyle of this city.

Mrs. Clifford Turner of Medora is a patient at the Jerseyville hospital after sustaining injuries in a one-car accident. Visiting Mrs. Turner in the hospital Monday were her sister-in-law, Mrs. John R. McConathy, and Mrs. Clyde Hopkins.

Mrs. Jene Merritt of Portland, Ore., has returned home after spending three weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Foster Dill, and others. Visiting in Mrs. Dill's home a portion of the time were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hunnicutt and Mrs. Elsie Hunnicutt of Granite City.

Mrs. Howard Hensley has returned from Alton, where she spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Moore of Alton and joining them at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Moore were her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woodfall of Alton. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Hensley visited also with Mr. and Mrs. William Oberkramer and family of St. Louis, Mo. They made the acquaintance of the Oberkramers' baby son, Mark Steven.

THE DOCTOR SAYS
To Sleep Or Not To Sleep

Q—My daughter, 23, gets only five hours of sleep every night. She says she feels fine. Can this be harmful in later years? A—Glutethimide (Doriden) is not a barbiturate. Although it does not cause true addiction, it may cause psychic dependence. Its side effects include on less sleep than others. So skin rash, nausea and blood disorders. Anyone taking the is normal, she feels well and drug regularly should have shows no signs of undue nervous tension, there is no need to worry.

Q—I have heard that for sound sleep one's head must be at the south end of a bed in a north-south position. Is this true? A—No. But persons who are disturbed by such superstitions might convince themselves that it is.

Q—What would cause a person to moan and groan in his sleep and what can be done to stop it? A—This is a sign of excessive worry or undue nervous fatigue. The victim is usually helped by avoiding such excitement as violent TV shows or reading horror stories before retiring or by getting to bed before he becomes so tired he can't keep his eyes open.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Make A Bed Quilt From Orlon Socks

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. J. F. W., Sr., could make a bed quilt with her many Orlon socks. Cut into three-inch squares or octagon shapes. Take two pieces and sew together, leaving one side open, then turn inside out and pat another sock smoothly inside to pad it. Do another two pieces the same way, then turn in the side edges that were left open and sew these edges together. Make as many of these as you will need. When they are all sewed together, you'll have a pretty, padded quilt.—CLARA

DEAR POLLY—Mrs. D.F.W., Sr., could use the ribbed tops off Orlon socks to replace worn cuffs on jackets and pajamas, sweat shirts, etc. Just fold in half and sew on like regular cuffs.—V.C.

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. D. F. W.—My mother used to cut old socks in strips, sew the strips together, then braid them. The braids can be formed into any shape and sewed together. In those days, we had no radio or TV, so we all helped her in the evening. Do all the cutting at one time, then you can make chair pads, rugs and even pot holders.—MRS. E.W.B.

DEAR POLLY—Spring is here and it is time to be planning a new flower arrangement for the center of the dining room table. How tall should it be? Place your elbow on the table in front of the arrangement and clench your fist. The flowers should be no higher than your fist, so as to permit cross-table conversation.—MRS. L. M. M.

Birds need great amounts of food. Young starlings sometimes devour their own weight of insects and berries in a day. After one meal a flicker's stomach was found to contain 5,040 ants. A bobwhite's held 10,000 pigweed seeds.

Women of Moose Ask Help With Hospital Project

Recently the Women of the Moose proposed an area wide project for the benefit of Passavant hospital.

Through the collection and redemption of Betty Crocker coupons, they hope to earn enough to purchase five data-scopes to be used in surgery.

The data-scope is an electronic portable machine that measures vital statistics of a patient during surgery. These are similar to the heart monitors that are used in intensive care.

Currently local Jaycees, Ambucs and American Legion Auxiliary have joined in the campaign. It is hoped more organizations in the area will join in this worthwhile cause.

The General Mills Corporation does not purchase any of the equipment. The organization purchases the machines. After collecting the coupons, they are sent to General Mills, who in turn reimburses the sponsoring organization. Only one organization is registered in an area. The WOTM is the registered club for this area.

All cash contributions will also be appreciated for if the campaign is conducted on coupons alone, it will take at least one million coupons.

All General Mills products carry these coupons. Soon many collection boxes will be placed in various public locations. In relationship with this, anyone having either two- or three-pound empty coffee cans to spare are asked to call the chairman. These will be decorated for use.

Many people will be needed to count and sort coupons. If your organization would like to help in any way, please call Mrs. Mary Ann Haworth. Speakers also are available.

Mrs. Haworth may be reached after 5:30 p.m. at Chapin 472-6304.

Evening vs. Morning

Evening star is a planet which can be seen in the evening sky after sunset. The term is used particularly to mean Venus and Mercury. When they are west of the sun and can be seen just before sunrise, they are called morning stars.

Ex-Nuns Face Many Adjustments

By DEE WEDEMYER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When they leave their old world for a new, it is a shock, like Rip Van Winkle awakening.

There are so many adjustments to make that people on the outside take for granted—dress, money, dating, even makeup.

They are the ex-nuns. An estimated 8,000 left the religious life alone last year to rejoin the secular young of their generation.

One of them is Barbara Kane. Before she had been simply Sister Matthew Maureen.

Her first jolt was the routine of applying for a job.

"I thought what am I getting myself into," said Barbara, 27, who found interviews were just the beginning of a series of rude awakenings she would have before settling into a Manhattan advertising job and a Queens apartment.

"I also wrote my friends and told them they should have practiced a few four letter words on me."

Dating proved no problem. Barbara, a plain but friendly blonde, who was in orders eight years, quickly learned dance steps. But it took her about 11 hours to learn to apply eyeliner.

Then there were "dating" bars. She found that scene too desperate and awkward when asked the standard, "Who do you know?" and "Where have you been?"

Barbara didn't want to lie about her past, but she didn't want to advertise it either.

"They start asking what you did last summer and when you went to Europe last," she said. "You get worn out trying to tell the truth and not tell the truth."

Another ex-nun, Ginny Schult, 31, a former Dominican sister, was given $300 by her order and $100 by a relative.

Totally bewildered about how to write a resume or get a job, she went to Bearings for Reestablishment, Inc., an organization that aids about 1,500 former nuns and priests each year with job counseling and social rehabilitation.

"It's a strange sensation to go out on a job interview selling yourself," said Ginny, a nun 13 years.

Although she was a qualified teacher, her first job was as a $110-a-week secretary to pay her apartment deposit.

She has since found a $19,500-a-year job as supervisor of teachers at a large Manhattan association for the handicapped but her Bronx studio apartment is still only partially furnished.

Ironically Ginny said, one of her main problems has been adjusting to poverty.

"My standard of living was a lot higher when I was in the convent but everything is relative. For example, I could never have had a bright yellow chair in the convent." Now she does in her apartment.

She also spent $100 at a discount store for her wardrobe. And now, like many other women, she has found her tastes have changed.

"Getting clothes wasn't as difficult as trying to decide what I liked," she said.

Barbara still attends Mass regularly. Ginny has stopped going. Barbara says she would consider birth control if she married. Ginny would not hesitate to practice it and furthermore states emphatically she would not rear her children in the same strict Catholic manner in which she was reared.

"I consider myself a good Catholic but I would not put my children through the same brainwashing process I went through," said Ginny.

Barbara harbors no animosity toward the order or the years she spent there. She thinks it is a fine vocation for some people, just not her.

"I don't think I was unhappy as a sister," she said. "I'm just freer as a person and I represent myself now."

Ginny cites internal politics and philosophical differences as her reasons for leaving.

East's last three cards are just as well-known. One is the jack of hearts and the other two are clubs.

You have the four of hearts and two apparently useless clubs while dummy holds the king of clubs and two apparently useless tens. It looks hopeless, but suppose you lead your four of hearts just to see what will happen.

All of a sudden, West is in trouble. He can't throw away the jack of either spades or diamonds and must discard his last club. What good does that do you?

A lot. You chuck dummy's king of clubs and East is on lead with the eight-five of clubs. He must lead one and your nine and six of clubs win the last two tricks.

Cadillac

STANDARD OF THE WORLD

Do it today...not 'someday.'

Perhaps you have long dreamed of owning a Cadillac... then reluctantly settled for some lesser car until that "someday."

You could find no better reason to make that "someday" come true today than the brilliant 1970 Cadillac.

Consider, for example, the grand Cadillac Sedan deVille, shown above. It is the most popular of all Cadillacs. Its impressive elegance suggests the driving pleasure inherent in its luxurious interiors, its host of comforts and conveniences and the superb performance of its great 472 V-8 engine.

Once behind the wheel, you'll enjoy the near effortless handling provided by Cadillac's variable-ratio power steering, power front disc brakes and brilliantly smooth Turbo Hydra-matic transmission, standard on every Cadillac model.

And you can enhance your motoring enjoyment with available Automatic Climate Control air conditioning, Tilt and Telescope steering wheel and the incomparable sound of Cadillac's exclusive AM-FM Signal-seeking stereo radio.

We think you'll agree, once you've driven the 1970 Cadillac, that you've waited long enough. And your authorized Cadillac dealer will be proud to help you make your "someday" come true... today.

Bury Two More Of Kent State Students Killed

LORAIN, Ohio (AP) — Two more of the four students killed by National Guard gunfire during an antiwar demonstration at Kent State University were buried Thursday amid appeals for peace.

William Schroeder, 19, who was on a ROTC scholarship and who friends said was drawn by curiosity to the demonstration Monday, was buried here. About 300 persons attended. The motorcade to the cemetery stretched for nine blocks.

In New York, about 300 persons, including Dr. Benjamin Spock and Mayor and Mrs. John V. Lindsay, attended services for Jeffrey Miller, 20, of Plainview, N.Y. Several thousand of his contemporaries massed outside the chapel in silent mourning.

Sandra Lee Scheurer, 20, of Boardman, Ohio, was buried Tuesday night, and services were held Wednesday in Pittsburgh for Allison Krause.

"Out of confusion must come order, out of conflict must come peace," the Rev. Donald Yaekle of St. John's United Church of Christ said at the services for Schroeder.

"Jeffrey is silent now," said Rabbi Julius Goldberg, "but in his silence I think he would plea with you to listen to his peers. All he's saying is: 'Give peace a chance—for God's sake, in the name of humanity, give peace a chance.'"

In a brief service on the street outside the Manhattan funeral home, a speaker said of Miller's death: "Let it teach us again about life and death, who we are, where we are and how very late it is for this nation."

Young Schroeder had been an Eagle Scout and honor student who had transferred to Kent to study psychology. He was second in his ROTC class.

Nine other students were wounded in the clash between Guardsmen and students.

Five remained hospitalized Thursday, and all but Dean Kahler, 20, a freshman from East Canton, Ohio, were listed as improved in fair or satisfactory condition.

Kahler, an education student, was reported partially paralyzed from wounds in the chest and abdomen. Taken off the critical list Tuesday, he was listed in guarded condition.

In fair condition at Robinson Memorial Hospital in nearby Ravenna were students John Cleary, 18, of Scotia, N.Y.; Thomas Grace, 20, of Syracuse, N.Y.; and Joseph Lewis, 18, of Massillon, Ohio.

The other wounded students have been released from hospitals, as was one National Guardsman treated for shock. A second guardsman was taken to a hospital for exhaustion, then released.

Release Time For Nixon Talk Before Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's news conference Friday night has been set for 10 p.m., EDT press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced.

It will be broadcast live by radio and television from the White House—the first full scale broadcast news conference since Jan. 30.

Governors' Conference Is Canceled

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer canceled Thursday the spring National Republican Governors' Conference this weekend in Santa Fe, because of "the disruption of peace, the violence and potential violence throughout the nation."

Shafer said all 50 state governors will meet Monday with President Nixon in Washington for a discussion of international and national affairs.

In Washington, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the governors were invited to join Nixon at 1:30 p.m. EDT Monday "to discuss the current matters before us, both foreign and domestic."

Shafer's announcement came at a news conference shortly before the conference was to have begun.

Shafer said the association originally had expected 25 of the nation's 32 Republican governors, but the list dwindled steadily as disorders mounted across the nation. Only 12 governors were planning to attend as of Thursday.

Shafer said the decision to cancel was made after conversations with his fellow Republican governors.

"We feel a deep responsibility to keep our avenues of communications open with our home communities," Shafer said.

Petty Confident About Chances In Rebel 400

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Driving a backup car he brought in overnight, Richard Petty paced a dozen more qualifiers into the Rebel 400 stock car field Thursday and said he believes he can win the Saturday race.

Petty, who wrecked his No. 1 Plymouth after qualifying in seventh position Wednesday, was relegated to a 12th place start by his second day effort.

The backup machine which the 32-year-old star said was built for short ovals and not for super speedways like Darlington, was clocked at 149.705 miles per hour Thursday. His speed in the No. 1 car Wednesday was 150.81 m.p.h.

Beman Captures 1st Round Lead In Houston Golf

HOUSTON (AP) — Deane Beman battled gusty winds for a three-under-par 68 and the first-round lead in the $115,000 Houston Champions International Invitational Golf Tournament Thursday while courageous Ben Hogan stayed in contention with a 71.

Hogan, limping from the start on a painful left knee encased in a big brace, had four birdies, two bogeys and a double-bogey six in his first competitive round since the 1967 U.S. Open and was just three shots off the pace.

"I must admit I was a little nervous," said the 56-year-old Texas Hawk, winner of 54 tour events, including four U.S. Open titles.

Beman, a long-time amateur star before turning pro in 1967, held a one-stroke lead over lean Bert Green, Bruce Crampton, a transplanted Australian now living in Dallas, and Gibby Gilbert, who each shot 69.

Scores generally were high on the tough, 7,166-yard course that was the site for last year's National Open. Orville Moody, who won that title, had a 74. Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo, the Champions winner in 1968, had a 75.

The group at 70, one-under par, included leading money winner Lee Trevino, one of the prime favorites for the $23,000 first prize.

The others were Dale Douglas, Johnny Pott, Tommy Aaron, Gene Littler and Dave Hill.

South African Gary Player, another pre-tourney favorite, had a 72 with bogeys on his last two holes.

Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper are not competing here.

First to Fly

The first time an airplane carried a presidential nominee to a convention to receive the nomination was on July 2, 1932, when Franklin D. Roosevelt flew from Albany to deliver his acceptance speech before the Democratic convention.

The two front row spots in the 36-car field went to Dodge's Charlie Goltzback at 153.822 m.p.h. and Bobby Allison at 153.526. Their speeds, recorded on the first day of time trials, knocked down Cale Yarborough's track record of 152.293 m.p.h.

Armed Violence In Ireland Appears Likely

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish Republican gun-running unit, the Red Cross labels—a plot that shook Ireland's government—raised the specter Thursday of armed violence in Northern Ireland.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, Ulster's militant Protestant leader, urged the rearming of police and "B" special squads for defense against the smuggled arms that police sources said were destined for Roman Catholics in the North.

"The Northern Ireland government must either show it has determination and courage to defend this province," Paisley said in Belfast, "or get out and leave the task to those who have determination and courage."

Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish republic, who fired two members of his cabinet because he said they attempted to run guns into Northern Ireland illegally, tried to ease the tension. He told newsmen he thought he "had shown my determination to pursue only peaceful methods with regard to the North," and that the Irish Cabinet crisis would help peace, law and order.

Dublin spent a quiet Ascension Day, a religious holiday, but Irish security agents fanned out in a broadening inquiry into the gun-running intrigue—talking to army officers, government officials and even the rank-and-file civil worker.

The arms plot had a jigsaw of angles that took in Donegal and Dublin, Amsterdam and Vienna. Unofficially, it is reported that British intelligence and Interpol, as well as the Irish special branch, are investigating.

Police sources alleged that customs officers at Dublin Airport had been instructed from a top level to let Red Cross crates from Amsterdam and Vienna come through without the usual examination. The crates, these sources said, actually contained arms destined for militant Catholics in Northern Ireland.

Some of these Catholics were reported brought across to Donegal last fall to be trained by the Irish Republican Army in secret.

Ironically, no apparent crime was committed in Ireland. Deputy Prime Minister Erskine Childers said Thursday he did not anticipate any criminal charges against an Irish national as a result of the gun-running plot.

Dayan Indicates Israel Plans Lebanon Fight

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — Residents of this Lebanese border village shouted for "reprisals and vengeance" against Arab guerrillas in Lebanon Thursday, and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan indicated Israel would fight the saboteurs on Lebanese soil.

Several dozen residents of the immigrant town demonstrated in the main street following a rocket attack from Lebanon that killed a 57-year-old man and his daughter, aged 17.

"Arab murders," read some of the placards they carried.

Dayan told newsmen that "apart from civil defense measures, we will have to carry on activity across the border."

This was seen as a sign Israel might react as it has done in previous attacks of this sort—by sending small task forces to blow up houses in Lebanese villages suspected of cooperating with the guerrillas.

The Kiryat Shmona incident was one of a series of flareups that set people along three Middle East borders on edge.

On the Syrian front, Arab guerrillas loosed bazooka and machine gun fire at an Israeli army patrol, killing three soldiers and wounding two, the military said.

From Jordan came a burst of artillery fire at artillery emplacements. One stray shell hit a house in Maoz Haim on the Jordan River, causing slight damage but no casualties, witnesses said.

There were two other incidents emanating from Lebanon, the military claimed.

Israeli troops fought a running battle with Arab guerrillas who penetrated as deep as Amihud in the Acre region, 13 miles south of the Lebanese-Israeli border. Four guerrillas were killed in the firefight, over rocky terrain in a wooded region, the military said.

Guerrillas from Lebanon also damaged a waterpipe at the border settlement of Dishon, a spokesman said.

On the Egyptian front, Israeli planes pounded war targets for four hours, returning safely, he reported.

Bruins Tip Blues 4-1 For 3rd Win

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins, charging toward their first Stanley Cup in 29 years, got two goals by Wayne Cashman Thursday night, defeating St. Louis 4-1 and scoring their third straight triumph in the best-of-seven National Hockey League championship series.

The Bruins, who last won the cup in 1941, can wrap up this year's series in game No. 4 Sunday against the Blues, who have now dropped 11 straight final-round games in the last three seasons.

The victory was record-breaking ninth straight for the Bruins in the playoffs and again, as in the first two games of this series, they weren't particularly hard pressed to get it.

Goalie Glenn Hall, making his first appearance against Boston, kept the Blues in the game with a number of remarkable saves. His goal-tending gave St. Louis its best chance of the series but the Blues' forwards rarely bothered Boston netminder Gerry Cheevers, and Cashman's 2 third-period goals put the game out of doubt.

Actually, the Bruins had to come from behind for the first time in the series in this one. St. Louis struck first with Frank St. Marseille credited with a goal which was put into the Boston net by Bruin defenseman Dallas Smith.

St. Marseille's power play rush had been broken up in front of Cheevers but Smith was unable to control the puck and it slipped off his stick into the net.

Boston drew even on hot-shooting Johnny Bucyk's 10th goal of the playoffs, also a power play effort. Hall had turned in a series of spectacular saves, the last one on Phil Esposito, and was down on the ice when Bucyk lifted a rebound past him. It was Bucyk's sixth goal in three games against St. Louis.

Local Race Track Set For Opening

The Jacksonville Speedway at the Morgan County Fairgrounds is set to open the local racing season this Saturday with a race that is scheduled to start promptly at 8:30 p.m.

Two classes of cars will be featured, the semi-late models and the "Hobos", with eight races sanctioned by the Midwest Racing Association on the card for every Saturday night. Promoter Lance McNeely says he expects several new cars owned and driven by local drivers to make their debut in this Saturday's race.

The track at the Speedway has been enlarged to a full one-quarter mile and should provide a good test for rookie drivers, as well as for veterans.

There will be two gates opening at 6:30 at the Speedway, with the time trials set for 7:30 in the evening.

Bluejays Down Wildcats, 6-2

PALMYRA — Held scoreless for the first three innings of play, visiting Porta picked up three runs in the fourth and two more in the fifth on the way to downing Northwestern by a final 6-2 count Thursday afternoon.

Porta's Hohimer and Wesselman picked up the only extra base hits of the game with a home run apiece to give the Bluejays a 14-4 record over-all and a 9-1 mark in MSM Conference play.

In their first year of baseball competition, the Wildcats held a 1-10 record and a 0-9 mark in the loop.

Oliver's Single Boosts Pirates By Astros, 9-5

HOUSTON (AP) — Al Oliver's tie-breaking two-out single in the eighth inning touched off a four-run Pittsburgh surge Thursday night that downed Houston 9-5 and ended the Pirates' seven-game losing streak.

The score was tied 5-5 when Oliver knocked in pinch runner John Jeter, who had entered the game after pinch hitter Jose Pagan walked.

Another run scored on a wild pitch by Fred Gladding and two more crossed the plate on a passed ball by Marty Martinez, who was struck on the left wrist by Richie Hebner's bat.

Willie Stargell clouted a three-run homer in the first inning and Bob Robertson followed with a solo shot off Astro starter Don Wilson as the Pirates grabbed a quick 4-0 lead.

Shannon Joins Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals announced Thursday that third baseman Mike Shannon has been pronounced physically fit and will accompany the team to Atlanta for a three-game series beginning Friday.

Shannon, 30, was placed on the disabled list after he was discovered to have Nephritis March 18.

The 6-foot-3 infielder spent several weeks in a hospital upon his return from spring training in Florida, then convalesced briefly at home before beginning workouts at Busch Stadium last weekend.

"I feel fine," an elated Shannon said at his home. "It's just like I got hurt and was out of the lineup for 30 days."

Dr. Stan London, team physician, said Shannon's kidney condition "is stable," adding, "it has been stable for sometime, and it remained that way following the workouts last week."

"He continues under treatment and medication," he said, "and we will continue to reevaluate his condition weekly. He's been given the green light to play, but we're keeping our finger on the case."

There was no immediate word from the Cardinal front office on when Shannon might be reactivated.

In the absence of Shannon, Richie Allen has been at third base.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Mad lemmings do it this way, too: of a sudden, turning tail, kicking up dust and rocks as they career amass over the cliffs and into the drink. So it is with golf crowds after a favorite putts out.

Quiet as pallbearers. Clunk of ball in cup. Then all hell breaks loose. It matters only whether they can now crash through to get a vantage point at the next tee or fairway.

A person who attends a golf match on the pro tour needs be a great deal daffy. If he is fortunate and has only broken a rib or two getting to a spot, then he may be able to peek over someone's shoulder to catch the glint of sun on the golfer's steel shaft upon swing.

Then one quickly twists a head to follow the flight of the soaring ball and vision is obscured as a nose narrows into a neighbor's armpit.

And if one is fortunate enough to avoid that hazard, then a risk of blindness is taken. One looks straight up into the sun in hopes of catching sight of the ball.

There are many "aahhs" when crack of club meeting ball is heard. Now, for all that these people know, the guy could have hit the ball backwards, like a foul against the screen in baseball.

But some guy nearby, finally reeling with ennui after the contemplative golfer has walked up and down a hill on a fairway to survey his iron shot, selected one club and replaced it and selected another and replaced that, and then tossed some grass into the wind and then took some time to pull out his shirttail because the wind took the grass down his neck, well, this spectator yawns.

This "aahh" is mistaken for an exclamation of "Oh boy, was that ball clubbed—down the middle—perfect! Terrific! Superduper!" And since nobody saw the shot, everybody figures they've missed something fabulous and, because they battled like crazy to get where they are on the course, and paid outrageous prices just to get into this fastidious country club, how can they admit that they aren't getting the enjoyment like the guy next to them?

It's really a very vicious cycle. But maybe the most vicious are those people who are assured of a place to watch. They are the folks who come toddling out at about four in the morning, equipped with rain gear and sun gear and fog gear and tornado gear (prepared for any eventuality), and with a box lunch and a pole chair and stake out near a green but close to a water hole.

And all day, these vultures sit and watch and pray that, on the next twosome, two balls land in the water. Then these characters, like people who plant banana peels on sidewalks, watch the harried golfers strip a sock and shoe, roll a trouser leg, and go splashing around as if trying to bludgeon a trout.

It's a strange phenomenon, this thing about people watching golf matches at a course. Why not look at a man survey an empty lot as watch one chart the undulations of a green? Why not sit cross-legged and observe a fellow cut sugar cane as scrutinize a man practice a swing 10 times before he decides to strike that little ball?

Why not just go to a library if you want to watch a man ruminate? And what's wrong with riding a subway train at rush hour if you're so intent on getting a foot crushed?

Parker's Triple Gives Dodgers 7-4 Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Wes Parker, who doubled, homered and singled earlier, walloped a two-run tie-breaking triple in the 10th inning Thursday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers erupted for three runs and beat the New York Mets 7-4.

Ted Sizemore opened the 10th by reaching on shortstop Bud Harrelson's throwing error and Willie Davis outlegged a bunt. Von Joshua attempted to bunt and catcher Duffy Dyer threw to second, but Sizemore took off for third and slid around Joe Foy's tag.

After Joshua was struck out by Jim McAndrew, Parker unloaded his triple over the head of center fielder Tommie Agee and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Bill Grabarkewitz.

The Mets tied it at 4-4 in the eighth as Joshua muffed Duffy Dyer's fly ball, scoring two runs off reliever Jim Brewer.

Walton's Homer Leads Brewers Over Boston 5-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Danny Walton powered his ninth home run of the season and three runs poured across on a throwing error as the Milwaukee Brewers downed Boston 5-1 Thursday night, continuing their harassment of the Red Sox.

It was only the Brewers' fourth victory—all against Boston—in the last 21 games and gave them a 4-2 edge over the Red Sox this season. They split 12 games with Boston last year playing as the fledgling Seattle Pilots.

Walton's 420-foot blast into the left-center field bleachers opened the Milwaukee half of the seventh to give the Brewers a 2-0 lead.

After the Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first on Willie Mays' 604th career homer, Fairly lashed a three-run homer. Jones hit his first homer of the year to highlight a two-run Expos' eighth.

The Giants took a 6-5 lead in the top of the fifth after Dick Dietz' two-run single.

But the Expos erupted for a game-clinching six runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Robinson's winning shot, on the first pitch to him from reliever Moe Drabowsky, followed walks to Terry Crowley and Marv Rettenmund.

It gave the Orioles their 17th straight victory over the Royals.

The homer erased a 6-4 Royals' lead built behind Bob Oliver's four RBIs.

Durocher Calls Action "Wrong"

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Leo Durocher of the Chicago Cubs, on his radio talk show, said Wednesday night "I'm not proud of it and I think I was wrong" about his obscene gesture at an umpire in Atlanta Saturday.

Durocher was fined $200 Sunday by National League President Chub Feeney and benched one game for the gesture at Umpire Tony Vanzo after a disputed ball-strike call in the Cubs 4-2 loss to the Braves.

Reed's Leg Knicks Big Question

NEW YORK (AP) — Willis Reed's ailing hip remained the big question Thursday on the eve of the National Basketball Association showdown in Madison Square Garden on Friday night.

"It's the seventh game," said Reed. "I'll play if I have to go out there on one leg."

The New York Knickerbocker star and Most Valuable Player in the NBA had to sit out Wednesday's game against the Lakers in Los Angeles because of the ailing hip.

Los Angeles roared to a 15-113 victory to square the best-of-seven series at three each in quest of the NBA championship.

"I feel he has a good chance to play on Friday," said Dr. James Parks.

The 6-foot-10 Knick ace from Grambling suffered strained hip muscles — technically known as the tensor and rectus femoris — in a fall Monday night during the first quarter at New York. He teammates rallied to win that one 107-100 without him.

Perry Tosses Minnesota Over Detroit, 9-6

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Perry pitched a one-hitter for six innings until Detroit rallied for four runs in the seventh, but the Minnesota Twins hung on to beat the Tigers 9-6 Thursday night.

Perry was working on a 7-0 lead going into the bottom of the seventh with the help of a two-run homer by Tony Oliva in the first and a three-run blast by Harmon Killebrew in the seventh.

The Tiger rally knocked Perry from the mound but he picked up his fifth win in six games. The victory was his 16th against Detroit, a total matched only by Dave McNally of Baltimore.

Huntz, Colbert Power Padres Over Phils, 8-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Shortstop Steve Huntz, who came up less than two weeks ago from the Pacific Coast League, slammed his fourth homer and drove in three runs and Nate Colbert hit two homers as the San Diego Padres defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 8-2 Thursday night.

The Padres made short work of left-hander Chris Short, who lasted 1 2-3 innings. Dave Campbell opened the game with a double and scored on Clarence Gaston's single.

In the second, Colbert led off with his eighth home run and another run scored on a passed ball after a walk, the first of three hits by Bob Barton and pitcher Pat Dobson's single.

San Diego added a pair in the fourth on Dobson's second single and Huntz' home run.

When he spots a kid in the stands with a glove and an eager expression, he edges over and flips the ball to him.

"I toss a ball away before every game," he said. "I guess if the Pirates could prove it, they'd have a fit. But I like kids. I figure kids should have a chance to meet the players. Maybe they wouldn't be running onto the field so much if they did. If I can cultivate fans for baseball by being nice to kids, what's so wrong with it?"

Last season, before a game against the Dodgers in Los Angeles, Hebner tossed a ball to a young fan. A few weeks later, he received a letter from the boy's father.

"It was three pages long. The man said he was impressed with me as a human being. I felt real good, like I did something to make somebody else's life happier. I still have the letter at home."

Platooning Ruined Hebner's Chances

By MARTY RALBOVSKY
NEW YORK (NEA) — Since he was the only rookie to hit over .300 in the National League last season (he finished with .301), Richie Hebner went home to Norwood, Mass., after the Pittsburgh Pirates' final game to dig some graves and wait for the telephone to ring.

Rookie of the Year? Who else was close?

Then one day he picked up a newspaper and read that Ted Sizemore of the Dodgers had won the award easily. Runner-up? There were two — Coco Laboy of the Expos and his own teammate, Al Oliver.

Third place? Two more — Bob Didier of the Braves, Larry Hise of the Phillies.

It wasn't until Richie Hebner finished scanning the agate type that he realized he hadn't received a single vote.

During the off-season, besides digging graves for his father, who is caretaker of a cemetery, Hebner coached a pee-wee hockey team and even worked out several times with the Boston Bruins of the NHL. He said he might have been playing for the Bruins instead of the Pirates had their money offer been equal. The Bruins offered him a $10,000 bonus to sign after his senior year in high school, but he turned it down.

"The Pirates offered more," he said.

But Hebner is still good friends with Bobby Orr and Derek Sanderson and the rest of the Bruins. He said he caught all their games at Boston Garden this season until spring training.

"I had a lot of time on my hands this winter," Hebner said. "I dug only 25 graves. My father figures it's a good year when we get 400 funerals. We didn't come close. It was a bad off-season all the way around."

"I couldn't believe it," he was saying before a game against the Mets. "I did hit .301 and I did get to bat 459 times, so my figures were legit. What did Sizemore hit? Two-seventy-something? Not winning it is one thing, but not getting a single vote is something else. It's darn embarrassing, that's what it is. I still can't figure it."

Had Hebner played every day, and still finished with .301, he would have received his share of votes and probably would have beaten out Sizemore. But since he played only when the other team used a right-handed pitcher and since Sizemore — and the others, for that matter — played every day against all kinds of pitching, it would seem that platooning did Richie Hebner in.

"I don't like it, but what can I do?" he asked. "I was playing every day until the middle of last June. Then one day I got to the park and noticed that Jose Pagan had replaced me in the starting lineup. He went 4-for-5 that day. I've been platooning ever since."

Although platooning did have an effect on Hebner's bid to become Rookie of the Year, it has not affected his attitude as a player — yet. Before games, he does not linger around the batting cage after taking his cuts to chat with newsmen. Instead, he is either fielding grounders at third base, shagging flies in left field, or running wind sprints.

"I have to keep busy before games," he said. "Too much nervous energy, I guess. My ink suffers, no doubt, but who cares?"

One of Hebner's pregame rituals, however, has nothing to do with fielding rounders or shagging flies. When he is convinced the rest of the Pirates are thoroughly preoccupied in warmups, he fades from the center of action and edges his way toward the stands. Always, he hides a scuffed practice ball in the pocket of his blouse.

Schuyler And Brown Society Has Banquet

MT. STERLING — One hundred and seventy-five attended the annual spring banquet for the Schuyler-Brown Historical and Genealogical Society, held May 3 in the gym of St. Mary's Academy here.

Miss Marjorie Cleaves, president, welcomed members and guests. Harold Bond is the vice president from Brown county. The dinner was served by women and young ladies of St. Mary's church. The menu was ham with all trimmings.

Group singing following the meal and Mrs. Roy Wilson of Versailles and Loren Fagan of Mt. Sterling also sang selections. Mrs. Alene Myers was the accompanist.

The speaker was Thomas Wilsted of Springfield, field representative for the Illinois State Historical Society. He showed slides of the old State Capitol in that city before it was torn down, prior to restoration, and then pictures following the reconstruction. Views were also shown of the interior and its furnishings.

Local Garden Clubbers' At District Meet

Eight members of the Morgan County Garden club attended the annual meeting of the Garden Club of Illinois District III at Pekin April 29 at the Holiday Inn, hosted by the Pekin Garden club.

Attending were Mrs. Milton Stout, Mrs. Harry Killam, Mrs. C. M. Reid, Mrs. Eugene Dods-worth, Mrs. Roy Shelton, Mrs. Claude Ware, Mrs. H. J. Wright and Mrs. Thomas Craver. The District chairman, Mrs. Francis Rafool, presided.

A number of flower show judges of Illinois (including one man) had prepared artistic arrangements.

As corn and corn products are to be used to decorate the tables at the National Convention in Chicago May 17-21, some of the articles being prepared were on display, including an ear of corn with the husks attractively curled, corn husk roses and a large doll fashioned from cornhusks.

Mrs. Walter Roesch of Springfield was elected District III chairman for the next two years.

Berlin: Sad Museum Of Wartime Ruins

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — Nostalgic restlessness and longing are pervasive moods in this once-great, now-divided city, as Germans wonder how much longer "die saure-gruken-zeit" will last.

The phrase, which has come to mean a time of protracted inactivity, literally means a "time of sour cucumbers." It originated with farmers who used idle hours to make dill pickles and sell them on city streets.

Today Berlin—East and West—is a sad museum of wartime ruins. The reminders are physical, political and psychological. As one West German put it after touring East Berlin: "When a German sees Berlin, he knows who lost the war."

In West Berlin—an enclave 110 miles inside East Germany—children play in vacant fields amidst the rubble born of bombs. In East Berlin, the ruins of the great German and French cathedrals are silent monuments to the last war.

Divided by intangible borders after World War II, Berlin's two halves were physically separated in 1961 by the Communist-built wall, the wall that both symbolizes the widening political gap and aggravates the psychological one.

It is a considered opinion of many in Berlin that the Russians had a fine sense of history when they claimed the old Berlin city center for their own postwar sector. Here lies the Brandenburg gate, symbol of the city, and here too is the last resting place of Adolf Hitler.

On the site of the Reich's chancellery there is now an outdoor kindergarten with sand boxes, benches and poplar trees. The kindergarten is intended as a counterpoise to the warlike past, but it is a symbolism lost in the immediately adjacent wall, erected by yet another dictatorial regime.

From across the street flows the Communist party's propaganda out of the same building where Joseph Goebbels once trumpeted Hitler's movement to the world.

Just off the Brandenburg Gate, the Adlon Hotel again is open for business. But a visiting American who knew it from before the war was shocked at the sight.

"The most beautiful women in the world," he recalled, "used to sit at the Adlon bar, but all that is left is what used to be the servants' wing. Everything else is gone." Out front there is a modest parking lot and there stand the waiting chariots of the new masters of historic Berlin, the dusty Wartburg, Chaika, Tatra and Volga cars of the eastern Communists.

There are few in Berlin who would yearn for a return to the days of Hitler. There is little yearning either for the instability of the prewar Weimar Republic, or even for the comparative stability of the Kaiser's day.

But in cafes and restaurants in East and West Berlin, over coffee, cake, beer or wine, the elderly sit in faded finery and dream of the days when Berlin not only was a "weltstadt," a city of the world, but when it and they were elegant.

This was apparent one summer afternoon in the painfully restored opera cafe in East Berlin where a full house sat in silence listening to a string ensemble play the tunes of the golden twenties and the lively, if not so carefree, thirties.

Perhaps nothing in Berlin symbolizes history having stood still after World War II more than the U.S., British and French military patrols that move endlessly along West Berlin's borders.

These days, with locked boxes of ammunition and empty guns, they roll past the debris of a war that ended before most of the soldiers were born.

The view of many a Berliner in the face of these circumstances was summed up by an elderly woman at an official reception on the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the lifting of the 1948-49 Russian blockade. "How long," she asked, "how long is all this supposed to last?"

Her words carried more than usual weight. She was Mrs. Ernst Reuter, the widow of the fiery mayor who fought the postwar Communist drive to take over all of Berlin's politics.

The present mayor, Klaus Schuetz, also took the anniversary occasion to remind the Germans, as well as the allies, that not only has Reuter's hope gone unfulfilled, but that there has been no political progress at all in the intervening two decades.

Although the dilemma of a divided city is a fact of life for Berliners, there is evidence that the rest of the world views the situation quite differently. A British general remarked once that the West Berliners had nothing to complain about. "They have plenty to eat, plenty of money and live better than most of the rest of Europe," he said.

A German journalist thereupon asked the Briton if a divided London would be satisfied indefinitely with a high standard of living for one half of the city as a substitute for the lack of British political influence and physical unity. The general did not reply.

In May of each year, the Western allies stage a parade that commemorates their military victory over Nazi Germany. At the last one a group of young Dutchmen talked about their visit to Berlin.

"We in Holland," one youth declared, "would rather have two Berlins, two small and unimportant Germanies, than one big important Berlin and Germany."

Perhaps the change in Berlin after the war best can be expressed by the decline in its population. At its peak, the city had almost five million people.

Now there are 3.3 million. "We have," an attorney declared sardonically, "plenty of room to rattle around in."

Don't Use Nets

Portuguese fishermen, unlike those of other countries, use only hooks, never nets, to catch cod. The fisherman, working with bare hands in freezing weather, pays out a long line with 400 to 1,000 baited hooks, and a highly skilled or lucky fisherman may hook as much as a ton of cod in a single day.

Motto Was Omitted

The 1907 issue of the U.S. $20 gold coin did not originally carry the motto, "In God We Trust," the omission being made to comply with the belief of President Theodore Roosevelt that such a motto on coins of commerce was sacrilegious. Congress, however, forced restoration of the motto in 1908 and a second issue of the coin was made.

KEEPING THE FAITH, a Cambodian soldier checks his rifle in anticipation of a Communist attack. In background is a religious statue.

Mites Might Be Villians In Most House Dust Allergies

By GEORGE S. DELL
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — You may not know it, but you have mites as bedfellows.

A few of the tiny, eight-legged creatures may even have ventured as far as your favorite overstuffed chair or the pillow on the sofa.

When mealtime comes around, you're it. Mites like to munch human skin — the dead variety, scraps of which you leave in the threads of your bedding and the folds of your furniture.

You've probably never noticed your tiny buddy—after all, he's smaller than the period at the end of this sentence.

But mites can bug you. Ever catch yourself sneezing around the house for no good reason?

Researchers at Ohio State University think mites are the villains in more than 80 per cent of the house dust allergies in this country.

While mites were discovered in the late 1800s, the first hint that they might be linked with allergies came in 1964 from two Dutch scientists who found them in house dust in Europe.

Ohio State's acarology (mite and tick) laboratory has vacuumed up 64 dust samples from homes in nine states, and has discovered mites almost everywhere.

Getting rid of them is the lab's next problem.

One idea—a super air conditioning system that would make air too dry for mites to live—was ruled out as too expensive. It would cost about 10 times as much as present air conditioning.

More promising and less expensive are chemical "miteicides" that the lab is studying with aid of a $3,100 grant from the National Pest Control Association.

While mites are as easy to find as the shake of a pillow, collecting enough for research poses another problem.

The microscopic pests are more than worth their weight in gold as the university's laboratory discovered in December when the federal government awarded it a contract to supply 25 grams—less than an ounce—of them.

The government's price—$30,000. But that buys more than 2.5 million mites!

To meet the demand, the university is growing mites in tall glass cylinders, feeding them powdered dog food. A few of the skin eaters are getting a diet more to their liking—sweepings from electric razors.

To date the laboratory has supplied eight grams of mites—about $10,000 worth. It has eight months to supply the rest.

The mites are going to the federal government's Division of Biologic Standards laboratory in Bethesda, Md., where U.S. Public Health Service researchers are testing drugs for allergy sufferers.

As they do, the rest of us may be casting an anxious glance under the covers for the little fellow we never knew was there.

Beaten Children Need Help, But So Do Their Abusive Parents

By TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK (NEA) — The other evening a two-year-old child was admitted to a Manhattan hospital with one arm broken, both eyes blackened, cigarette burns on his shoulders and the look of starvation about the entire body.

The child had been tortured by his parents.

Nothing entirely extraordinary, actually. Some 2,000 cases of battered children are reported in New York City each year. And the estimated child abuse rate for the nation is 250 per million people, or more than 50,000 annually.

So, question: What should the authorities, acting in behalf of the child and society at large, do with men and women who commit such crimes?

Most of us would probably answer in anger. Arrest them, toss them in prison—and never again permit them to live with or even see their infant victims. But according to growing numbers of pediatricians, this reaction may be the worst thing authorities might do. Instead, doctors believe that such parents are not so much sadists as they are emotionally sick, and therefore therapy and family counseling are more justified than jail.

The physicians feel this isn't bleeding heart psychiatry. Rather, just good sociological sense. Because, they say, rehabilitating the parents is often the best thing that can be done for the children themselves.

Dr. Edmund Joyner, chairman of the Department of Pediatrics at Roosevelt hospital, sums up the whole principle: "One thing I've learned in treating hundreds of battered children is that they still love and need their parents—just like any other kids. After they've been healed here at the hospital, and their parents come to take them home, they don't act frightened. They run like crazy to give mom and dad a big hug. They don't want to be taken away, or put in a children's shelter. Despite everything, they want to continue living at home."

Joyner qualifies his remarks by noting that some children can't continue to live at home and that some parents are beyond help. He cites an example of a woman who beat her daughter because she thought the child had been raped and "in accordance with God's law" she was beating the evil away. Psychotics like this, says Joyner, are too dangerous to be reunited with children.

But such psychotics are apparently rare. Studies of child abusers indicate most parents of the type are disturbed only to the extent they can't help themselves—and thus may be redirected if help from the outside is provided.

Dr. Ray Hoffer of New York's Catholic Medical Center is perhaps the nation's foremost authority on battered children and battering parents. He has probed thousands of cases and is into his second book on the subject.

He's convinced that helping the parents, like treating the children, must be a regular part of hospital work. And he believes such work is made easier because all such parents tend to follow a regular, identifiable pattern.

Says he, sketching it: "Almost all abusing parents have histories of parental neglect themselves. So, never having had normal family affection themselves, they expect much more of it from children of their own. If they don't get it, then they strike back, usually at small children (five and below, because the age group can't testify) and often at only one target child in their litter."

Heller insists this pattern of parental history is so clear that he can predict, by asking questions, which parents are prone to abuse. He says normally reared parents almost never brutalize their kids. Mixed couples (one abnormally raised) will follow the lead of whichever is the dominant mate. But two brutally raised parents will invariably brutalize their kids.

The doctor further feels that child abuse usually does not take place unless accompanied by some form of crisis. The child may be cranky, or the parent worried about bills. In such events, the parent who is prone to child beating is incapable of finding any release. He doesn't know or doesn't care to seek outside help. And thus he takes his frustrations out on his baby.

Given these clear traits of child abusers, Drs. Heller, Joyner and others believe it's possible to forecast child abuse before it happens.

If hospitals, social workers, cops on the beat, even laymen in America's neighborhoods, were educated to the facts of child beating, many brutalities might be stopped or at least kept to a minimum.

Pediatricians feel it's worth more study and consideration. They say that right now most battered children can be saved, by way of the law, from the savagery and sickness of their abusing parents. How much better it would be, by way of the hospitals, the parents could be saved, too.

COLLEGE STUDENTS are shown singing during a memorial service for Kent State riot victims Thursday night.

Town Meeting Held At Mac Thursday

Students and faculty of MacMurray College filled Annie Merner Chapel Thursday morning and joined in a town meeting to "consider the grave issues confronting our nation at this time." A memorial service for the four students killed at Kent State Monday was held.

Michael Gottlieb, a MacMurray student from New York, eulogized the four as middle class students, noting that "there wasn't a black face or a long hair among them." Gottlieb told the audience that if middle class students could be shot by the National Guard in Ohio that the Guard could also be called to Evanston, Winnetka and Webster Groves, Mo. and other middle class communities.

He cautioned the students not to denounce the Guardsmen as "murderers and pigs," saying "they aren't much different from the students they shot. They might have joined the Guard to avoid fighting in Vietnam." Gottlieb asked the audience to "consider the interrelatedness of all life" and join in a minute of silent prayer or introspection.

Following the memorial service chaplain Richard Stanger took charge of the meeting to consider seven proposals presented by an informal student committee of about 100 which organized Wednesday night.

That group coordinated plans for a march to the square to join Illinois College students in a memorial service for the slain students at 10 p.m. Thursday. Illinois College students are holding a service in the student center at 9 p.m.

MacMurray College president Dr. John J. Wittich, who authorized the general assembly in chapel said he thought the meeting "by and large was constructive." Wittich attended the sessions Thursday morning and was expected to return in the afternoon.

A list of the proposals being considered by the meeting follows. It is not complete because other resolutions were being taken from the floor Thursday afternoon.

—That condolences and expressions of sympathy be extended to the families of the students tragically slain at Kent State University this week.

—That classes be suspended on Monday May 11th, for the purposes of examining the crisis now facing our nation and taking action appropriate thereto.

—That the invasion of Cambodia and renewed bombing of North Vietnam by American forces under orders from President Nixon be condemned.

—That the senators and congressmen for the state of Illinois and from the home states of the other students of the College be urged to oppose all appropriation bills designed to subsidize the expanded war in Indochina.

—That the many American soldiers in Vietnam and Cambodia who oppose the war be supported in every way possible in their resistance to the orders of aggression they have received from President Nixon.

—That MacMurray College support the efforts to impeach President Nixon and Vice-President Agnew for their unconstitutional commitment of American forces to an enlarged war in Indochina.

—That the male students of MacMurray be encouraged to refuse cooperation in any way with the draft.

Poll Results

About 500 students participating in the voting on the proposals favored all of the first seven listed above. They were on record as opposing the resolution which would put MacMurray on record as supporting effort to impeach President Nixon and Vice President Agnew.

Thirty faculty members polled supported the first four resolutions above. Faculty and students both supported resolutions that President Wittich telegraph Nixon protesting our involvement in Cambodia and concern over the killing of the Kent State students.

The poll was taken to establish a consensus of opinion among faculty, students and administration. The voting had no binding effect upon college policy.

Faculty Meeting

At a meeting held Thursday at 4 p.m. the faculty voted to suspend classes Monday to allow the college to "constructively express concerns over the recent killings at Kent State and the present (Indochina) war situation."

Classes scheduled for Monday will be held May 22, a day set aside for study prior to final exams.

President Wittich also announced that he would send a letter to President Nixon expressing student concern over the Kent State and Cambodia issues. Copies will be sent to both senators and to state legislators representing this area.

In a letter to the MacMurray Community, Wittich said:

"To those students and faculty who organized the meeting and who provided us opportunity to express grief for the students at Kent State, anger at our national predicament, and support for constructive solutions — I offer my appreciation."

Wittich also commended faculty, students and administrators for working together and continuing the "responsible voice of MacMurray . . . which will be heard and respected."

Students Assemble On Square

About 250 MacMurray and Illinois College students along with a handful of professors and townspeople met in Central Park Thursday night in a memorial to the four young men and women shot to death at Kent State University Monday.

Orderly, candlelight processions moved down East and West State streets with a police escort. Songs, poetry and prose recitations, and speeches urging an end to war and calling for respect and love in dealing with others were heard.

MacMurray students announced plans to travel to Springfield Monday to demonstrate in favor of the Mann Bill before the General Assembly.

The Mann Bill is essentially the same as a bill passed in Massachusetts saying that the state's men would not have to fight in an undeclared war.

A mock coffin was carried to the square by the Mac students. Illinois College students carried white crosses bearing the names of the four killed in Ohio.

Illinois College students met in the center of campus for a memorial service prior to the march downtown.

Small groups of local citizens watched the gathering at a distance. There was no heckling of the students.

The entire city police force was on duty as a precaution. Policemen feared that local youths might try to disrupt the marches or the assembly. There was no violence.
